INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 6.—It is the impression among the best informed Republicans that on Tuesday the Republicans will elect a majority of each branch of the Lexislature, and toat they will gain one Congressman, viz., in the Ist District, where William Heliman is running against Thomas Garvin. In all the other districts the Republicans expect to hold their own, leaving the Congressional delegation stand ten Republicans to three Democrats. The contest on the State ticket will be close. There is no certain data for estimating the National vote. In some districts they will come up pretty strong, while in others they will scarcely figure in the returns. It is this uncertain element that leaves the result as to the State ticket in doubt.—[Indianapolis Journal.

BALLSTON, N. Y., Oct. 7 .- The court-room was crowded to-day. Mr. Hughes closed his argument at the noon recess, having talked twelve hours. He descussed the testimony in proof of an alibi, as given by the Washburns and Jones, dwell-ing particularly upon the time fixed by the Washburn family and their respectability as adding weight to the testimony; and characterizing Jenes as the one truthful witness of the case, he having been corroborated by at least fifteen witnesses. He concluded by saying that leaving Jones entirely out of the case, the slibi was sufficiently proven by the testi-mony of the Wasburn family. His argument was closed concluded by saying that receiving some two the case, the aith was sufficiently proven by the testimony of the Wasburn family. His argument was closed by a brilliant peroration, in which he spoke of the relations between the prisoner and his wife and daughter.

Mr. Moak began summing up for the prosecution at 2:05 p. m., and talked until the adjournment of the court at 5:10 p. m. After the customary address to the court and jury, he said, quoting the language used by the prisoner to Maggie Mahoney on the night succeeding the murder: "That sho's wont where it was intended." On the evening of June 5, somebody knew whether it did or not. On the evening of June 5, somebody in that unguarded moment that always surrounds every man who commits a crime, attempted to tell whether it did or not. Somebody assumed to know whether it did or not, and that somebody was Jesse Billings, ir. He said this case had assumed an importance seidom attained in criminal jurisprudence, though its length has perhaps been equalied. He Genied the assertions of the prisoner's counsel that he (Moak) was employed by the relatives of the deceased; and said that he appeared by request of the Obstrict-Attorney and by assignment of the court. A man's character should be considered and noted. The prisoner had appeared without signs of mourning. While his counsel had been moved when referring to the murder, he had shown no signs of grief himself. The speaker eited many recent cases of murder proved by circuetantial evidence alone, in which it was shown that "respectable" men do commit murder, and do swear falsely on the witness stand. He spoke at considerable length, defining the question of a reasonable doubt, quoting legal authorities, and insisted that circumstantial evidence is as strong as positive evidence. He arend that a man weighed down wifu a consciousness of crime is never natural; that the shrewdest man, when he becomes a criminal, proves the veriest fool; eiting as an example the Webster-Parkman murder. FITZ JOHN PORTER'S CONDUCT.

THE ROUTE TAKEN BY GENERAL POPE'S AIDS-GEN-ERAL PORTER'S EXPRESSION OF LOYALTY TO GENERAL M'CLELLAN.

The examination in the case of General Pitz John Porter was resumed yesterday at Governors Island. General McDowell was present, and expected to testify, but having accidentally neglected to bring some valuable papers in his possession, he was not called. Major Douglass, of General "Stonewall" Jackson's staff, and Colonel Blackford, of General J. E. B. Stuart's staff, were present.

Ex-Orderly Sergeant Churies Duffee, who accompanied

Captain Pope on the delivery of the 4:30 order, testified that General McDowell was about three-fourths of a mile from General Pope, and from three and a haif to four miles from General Porter. Mr. Bullitt, of General Porter's counsel, quoted from Duffee's testimony before the court martial, wherein he described McDowell's po sition as upon the read from the "stone house" to Hay market, about two miles from Pope's headquarters. The witness had that impression, he said, until he vis ited the ground on Tuesday last, when he decided that he had mistaken the distance. He fixed the point on the map, a little to the west of the Sudley Springs road, near the Hazard farm. Returning, he had fo owed, as near as practicable, the same road, and had met General McDowell at a point somewhat nearer the met General McDowell at a point somewhat nearer the stone house. Troops were in sight at different points along the road. The witness arrived at McDowell's headquarters a little after dark. The return took from an hour and a quarter to an hour and a haif. He saw no troeps from a point about 400 yards north of. Porter's headquarters until he arrived at McDowell's, and he did not know the names of any of the orderlies who accom-panied him that day.

headquarters until he arrived at McDewell's, and he did not know the names of any of the orderlies who accompanied him that day.

Ex-Captain Douglass Pope, of General Pope's staff (and ne-hew of the General), was receiled, and marked on the Humphreys map the road taken with the 4:30 order. It did not differ materially from Duffice's marking.

Thomas F. McCoy, of Lewiston, Penn., a veteran of the Mcxican war, beverenpialls in the Regular Army, and ex-colones of the 107th Pennsylvania framity, testified that on August 25, 1892, his regiment lay a little south of Warr mon. On the 27th it was in motion until about 10 o'clock. On the morning of the 29th it was near Manassas Junction, in the vicinity of the oid Bull Run battle-ground. He knew that a battle was in progress on that day. He heard heavy and continuous firing in the direction of Groveton soon after they started. (This was the day on winch General Porter calined that he knew of no battle in progress.) There was a shower on the night of the 27th, between the time the regiment bailed and daybreak. The distance travelled that day was twelve miles. The resincent started at 5 p. m. from Warrenton, and baited at New-Saltimore about 1 a. m. from Warrenton, and haited at New-Sattimore about 1 a. m. The early part of the night was ever; before the battle it was a little overcast. The rain began after the regiment turned in.
Waterman L. Ormsby, jr., of No. 247 Putnam-ave, Brooklyn, testified: "I know the petitioner, General Porter, by reputation. I saw him at his residence in Washington in December, 1862. I was accompanied by Mr. Lord, the official stenographer of the court martin. I went to procure some documents that had been offered in evidence, and which I needed to complete my report for the journal with which I was then connected. General Porter made a remark showing his feeling, which impressed me strongly. He said: 'I warn't loyal to Pope; I was loyal to McCellan!' It is impossible for me to state another word of the conversation. I recollect positively that General Porter said "I warn't!" General Sonofield asked the witness to give an idea of the tone used by General Porter, and describe its moral quality. Mr. Orarsby repiled: "Certainly it was not repentant nor sorrowfai; it was earnest, as if explaining his position. I considered it as an unguarded statement."

Captain Charles Potter, of the 9th Pennsylvania Regiment, Third Brigade, General Rey noide's Division, testified that his company hy in a ravine to the lett of Groveton on the morning of August 29, on the extreme let of Pope's army, and was kept in movement all day. It was a little marting but it was heaviest at 3 p. m. Then It was rapid and constant.

Mark J. Bunnell, of Danville, N. Y., testified: I was a little martin in Company B in the 13th New-York (Colore Marshall's). On August 29, 1862, General Porter rode up, as I may on the grass, and ordered Colonel Marshall's). On August 29, 1862, General Porter rode up, as I may on the grass, and ordered Colonel Marshall to depoy his regiment as skirmbers, but not to bring on a general engagement. THE SILVER LAKE TRAGEDY ONCE MORE. DAMAGING TESTIMONY AT THE CORONER'S INQUEST AGAINST EDWARD REINHART-THE PRISONER'S

STORY. Edward Reinhart has been arrested in this city on suspicion of complicity in the death of the young woman whose body was found in a barrel near Silver Lake, S.L., and some important testimony against him has been given at the coroner's inquest. Reinhart him-self declares that he can produce the woman with whom he lived a few months ago on Staten Island, and who, the witnesses at the inquest are inclined to believe, was murdered.

THE ARREST AND THE EVIDENCE. Late on Sunday night a man called on Coroner

Dempsey, at New-Brighton, S. L, and said he had some information to impart about the Silver Lake mystery. The coroner, on hearing the man's statement, conc that it was of sufficient importance to reduce it to an affidavit, which is as follows:

Charles Herbern, of said county, being duly swern, says: I know Edward Reinhart; bewas a tebaut in my house in Gore-st., Stapleton, in said county, from about the 16th of June or July until the 1st of September. He had a woman living with him in my bouse woon he called his wife. The day before he moved he said to me that his wife was sick. The next day, when he moved, the wife was not seen. She had not been seen since 8 o'clock the night before. He moved about 8 o'clock the next morning. The woman was about eight months in the family way, and from the mode of Reibart's movements, and she not being seen, the deponent suspects and believes that said Reinhart did away with her. Sworn before me this 6th?

JAMES DEMPSEY.

Coroner Dempsey thereupon issued a warrant for the arrest of Reinhart on the charge of homicide. The mat-ter was put into the bands of Detective Dorsey, of the Police Headquarters at New York, who arrested Reinhart and locked him up at the Central Office. Yesterday morning Reinhart was taken to the Tombs Police Court, when he was remanded to the Richmond County officers-Sergeant Roe and Officer Drummond-who took him to the village hall in New-Brighton, and he was locked up in the station-house.

Brighton and the neighborhood, and large numbers of people assembled near Library Hall, where Coroner Dempsey's office is, making eager inquiries of every official and new-comer that arrived. When it became known that Corone: Dempsey had summoned as witnesses the neighbors in the quarter where Reinhart lived in New-York and the owners of his former home in Staten Island, the interest and excite ment were increased, and as the evening approached a large and impatient crowd rushed into the hall where the inquest was to be continued. The jury and the reporters were crowded into the smallest possible space around the corner. The noise made by the tramping of so many feet and the pressure of people against one another, all pushing their heads forward to catch every word, created so much confusion and tumult that the coroner was obliged repeatedly to call the assemblage to order, and once threatened to clear the ourt. The few officers who were in the court did their the people during the entire examination.

The prisoner was brought in by Sheriff B. Brown, and when he was seated there was silence for a few seconds, as the crowd scanned his features. He is of medium stature, about twenty-five years old, of rather dark complexion, and wearing a small moustache. He has a sul-plexion, and wearing a small moustache. He has a sullen expression. He said:

I have lived for the last three mouths at No. 132 Broome-st. New-York, and wentthere on the 20th of July last, when I left my home on Staten Island. While in Staten Island I lived in Mr. Herborn's house in Gorest. I was then engaged in the confectiousry and caparand tobacce business. In July, shortly before I left, I married Paulina Ditimar, a midwife by trade, and of German descent. We were married by the Rev. Mr. Sueder, a Latheran pastor, of No. 158 Allen-st. Paulina did not inve with me in Staten Island, but Mary Ann Keegan did, and I can produce her. Miss Keegan lived with me for three months. Paulina came to see me once, about a week before I left. Miss Keegan was six months advanced in pregnancy. I first met her in the evening, during the Winter, in the Bowery, on the horse-cars. She followed me to Staten Island. The day before I left Staten Island, Miss Keegan left me and went by the 6 o'clock boat. I married Paulina on the 13th of July, but my wife did not know that I sad lived with Miss Keegan. Miss Keegan never told me she was siek, and did not ask me for a physician. I have seen her once since, on Grand-si., near Ridley's store, and I can produce her.

On further examination Reinhart said: I left further examination Reinhart said: I left produce her.

On further examination Reinhart said: I left Staten Island in the afternoon. I waited for Jacob Keiner, who took me in a wagon. I did not have any barrei packed up before I moved. I carried away my crockery in a washtub. No one in the house told me that they would send on the crockery in a barrel. I did not move away anything after this. I did horrow a wheel' strow to carry sods and grass. The wagoner toe me to No. 132 Broome-st. New-York. No one as sed me to pack up my furniture, as it was all packed u except the crockery, which I carried out of the one and put into the wagon. I did not say that the cro-zery was going to my slater's, and that it was going to be wheeled there. My sister is Mrs. Defmar, wife oil. rence Defmar I once had a wheelbarrow at Siver Lake, which I used in carrying stumps. I once went along Duncan's road. I had an aze in the weelbarrow, but no spade. I did not, to my knowledge, have any conversation with any one on the way, nor do I remember any one speaking to me. I did not say that I was going to buy a dog from Chaco's place. I do not know where Casco's property is.

Here Keymer, who had testified that he saw Reinhart digging a hole, was called up, and the Coroner asked the prisoner if he recognized him. He replied, "I saw him in New-York only, and only learned his name from the

Reinbart testified further as follows:

I saw Miss Keeran four weeks ago on Grand-st. I passed her and she looked as if she had been confined. We did not speak to each other. I gave her $24 when she left, and she had some money besides. She never took me to visit any of her acquaintances. She was English, about eighteen or ninoteen years oid, feet 6 inches in height, with black hair and sallow complexion. She had three teeth in her lower jaw filled, and wore her hair to about her shoulders. Her cheek bones were not very high. I have been working in the marble-shop at No. 125 Attorney-st., New-York.

CONTRADICTIONS OF REINHART'S STORY.

Ans. Josephine Individuals of Edgewater. I knew Reinhart only when he moved into my house on the 15th of April last. He was alone when he rented a room. He came alone when the room was ready, and afterward his wife became friends. She told me that she was married to Reinhart in a church in Newark. They left my house on the 20th July following. She told me that they had lived together since they came to my house. She was sickly. The week before they moved she came to me and said, "Look out of the window; he is going with another woman." I looked out, and saw him with a woman in a gray smit. Afterward a child brought me a card with the name of Panlina Dittnar on it, and said a young lady wanted to see me. Miss Dittmar then came in, and by her dress I recognized her as the same woman who was walking with Reinhart. She wanted to know where Reinhart had gone. I told her it was not her business; that he was married and his wife was about to be confined. She left soon after. The last time I saw Reinhart's wife was on a Friday evening. She looked vesy sad and did not even bid me good-bye. Reinhart breught a barrel. He said there was china in it, and he wanted to take it to his sister. I asked him to leave the barrel in a room and I would take care of it for him, but he refused. I went about my work, but my children remained, and suddenly they cried. "Mother, the barrel has failen." I called out to Reinhardt to "Take care or the chima will break." He repiled, "Never mind, there are only irons in it, and if anything break it does not matter." He removed the barrel on a wheelbarrow and wont across the street to the Richmond road. I heard that the barrow upset and that he got another one.

In the afternooth he removed the rest of the furniture in an express wagon. Mrs. Reinhart always asked me lively and whisting. Mrs. Reinhart always asked me lively and whisting. Mrs. Reinhart always asked me lively and whisting. Mrs. Reinhard always asked me with a called on her. She complained of ill treatment by her husband, and one ev

Mrs. Herborn then returning to her statement with reference to the day Reinhart went away, continued : reference to the day Reinhart went away, continued:

He took the barrel on the wheelbarrow on Saturday morning between 8 and 9 o'clock, and returned about 11. He companied that his wie had taken only a few things, and that she had gone to her mother in Newark. Mrs. Reinhart said she was Irish, and that her maiden name was Annie Keegan. She had high eneck-bones and sinken cheeks. She word fine clothes. I never saw or heard Reinhart sawing wood. When one evening he came in with the wheelbarrow he had no wood. I had trouble with him. He was missing two days and one night when he went with the German woman, and his wife was very sad about it.

Josephine Herborn, a bright girl, thirteen years of are, daughter of Mrs. Herborn, testified that she Josephine Herborn, and his wife was very sad about it.

Josephine Herborn, a bright girl, thirteen years of are, daughter of Mrs. Herborn, testified that she knew Mr. Reinhurt. She added: "I saw his wife the day before he moved I saw a barrel with a carpet over it and a bag over that. I'll do not know what was in the barrel. I do not know what was in the barrel. He said he was going to take it to his sister. He got the wheelbarrow from Moses, a little boy. He took the barrel on a wheelbarrow and it upset. He lifted it up and put it on again. He said the wheel was broken and asked the boy if he knew where another wheelbarrow could be got, and the boy said yes. I noticed be got, and the boy said yes. I noticed that a carpet covered the barrel and a bag was tied over that a carpet covered the barrel and a bag was tied over the carpet. My brother saw the barrel, or something in it, move when it fell, but I did not see it I once awa lady come to see Reinhart.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS. THE COMING AFGHAN WAR.

THE INDIAN GOVERNMENT LEFT IN FULL CONTROL. LONDON, Monday, Oct. 7, 1878.

It is understood that the Cabinet Council, on Sat urday, generally approved the manner in which istan affair, and decided to leave the matter very much in the hands of the Indian Government.

The report printed in the Indian newspapers of the capture of Ali Musjed is contradicted. BRITISH SUCCESSES REPORTED.

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 8, 1878. The Standard's Simla dispatch says some asse that the troops have not advanced beyond Jamrood; others, that fighting has taken place, and that the troops have occupied a strong position near Ali-Musjid.

have occupied a strong position near Ali-Musjid.

The first report seems most probable, as The Standard's Calcutta correspondent reports that the attack on Ail Musjid was postponed for a short time, in consequence of the strength of the force which the Ameer had collected there. Six thousand Afghan infantry, with eighteen guns, threaten Jamrood. It will be necessary to employ the whole garrison of Peshawur for an advance on the Khyber Pass. It is reported from Umballa that fighting has begun between the Afghans and Khyberrees. Several reguments were leaving Umballa for the frontier, and an immediate action was expected.

ITALY AND HER EGYPTIAN INTERESTS.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 7, 1878.

A fresh element of uncertainty has been introduced in the Exyptian question by the action of Italy. seeking for herself and other Mediterranean Powers the right to participate in the administration of Egypt Reuter's dispatch from Rome says that as soon as the Italian Government was apprised of the intention to give an international character to the Egyptian administration, it sent representatives to the Khedive and to the Paris and London Governments, declaring that Italy the Paris and London Governments, declaring that Italy should be considered in the arrangements, as she has many interests to protect in Egypt. The Khedive replied that Italy's claim would be just if an international administration was intended; but, though some foreigners unlait enter the Cabinet, they would have no foreign endited character, and he was determined to maintain the complete independence of the Egyptian administration. England and France replied to Italy that the appointment of Englass and French subjects was merely an act of courtesy, not of political significance. Italy nevertheless, imasts that her rights and interests be respected. The exchange of views continues.

SEQUELS TO THE GLASGOW FAILURE. LONDON, Monday, Oct. 7, 1878.

The excitement over the collapse of the City of Glasgow Bank has subsided. French discoun houses are bidding for three months paper at 44 per cent, and the state of French and German exchanges renders it certain that gold will come here from the Con-tinent, so the appreheusions of increased tightness in the money market are allayed. The name of the firm of shipbuilders whose failure was announced on the 4th inst. was William Simons & Co., of Renfrew. The other shipbuilders who it was thought would fail are likely to flui heip that will enable them to tide over the criss. It is now believed that the assets of the heaviest debiors of the City of Glasgow Bank will turn out better than was at first hoped, with the exception of those of south, Fleming & Co., and their Indian houses, which are in a very bad condition.

THE AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN IMINISTRIES. VIENNA, Monday, Oct. 7, 1878.

The resignation of Herr von Szell, the Hungarian Minister of Finance, will probably take effect in mediately. The question of the acceptance of the resignations of the other Hungarian ministers will probably await the meeting of the Diet. It seems that Count Andrassy is disposed to put off the assembling of the legislatures until some time in November, by which time it is hoped the Bosnian question will be completely settled. An autograph letter of the Emperor Francis Joseph will appear to-morrow in the official journal, accepting the resignations of the Austrian mulisters, but ordering them to remain provisionally in office.

MEXICAN AFFAIRS.

Mexico, Oct. 2.-Friendly communications have been exchanged between Minister Foster and the Government in regard to the recent offensive demonstration in the theatre. Mr. Foster treats the matter as the act of some excited anti-American. No successor has yet been appointed to Senor Mata in the Foreign office. Schor Avila is acting Minister of Foreign Relations. President Diaz has organized a campaign against the Rio Grande I. dians. It is believed President Diaz will remove the Indians to the Pacific slope. Commerce is reported to be daily improving. The Diario Official announces that the free zone remains unchanged, and denies the report circulated in the United States.

ORDER RESTORED IN SANTA CRUZ. KINGSTON, Jamaica, Oct. 7 .- The insurrection in Santa Cruz has been queiled and the ringleaders captured. The cause of the insurrection is said to be a disagreement between the negroes and planters regarding labor contracts.

THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT. OTTAWA, Oct. 7 .- The Ministry will resign, and Sir Jain A. MacDonald will probably be called upon to form a Government to-morrow.

THE STEAMSHIP GEORGIA ASHORE, THE STEAMER STRANDED ON THE COSTA RICAN SHORE-HER CARGO PROBABLY SAFE.

D. S. Babcock, president of the Mail Steamship Company, received information yesterday that the steamship Georgia of that line had gone ashore at Punta Arenas, in Costa Rica, about 450 miles from Panama, but that the passengers and crew, the baggage and mails, were safe, and bad been sent to San Francisco on an extra steamor. The Georgia sailed from Panama on September 29, with the passengers and mails Panama on September 29, with the passengers and mails which left this port on the steamship Colon on September 19, and she struck on the reefs on the night of October 1. The night is said to have been clear and moonlight, and the accident is only accounted for by her having kept too near shore. Mr. Babcock stated that there were hopes of getting the vessel of, and that the freight, which was transferred from the Clyde which left here Softember 9, would probably be saved. The vessel is an iron propeller of 2,000 tens, and was bought with the South Carolina, Crescent City, George W. Clyde and The Clyde, at a gross sum of $1,350,000. Shells a sister ship to the Crescent City now running between this port and Aspinwall, and struck on a rock in the Straits of Mage inn about eighteen months age and was floated of by the Const Wrecking Company of this city. She is said to have been worth in the trade about $250,000, but her real value is set down at $150,000.

THE CONNECTICUT TOWN ELECTIONS. NO CHANGE IN THE EASTERN PART OF THE

STATE - PROBABLY A SMALL DEMOCRATIC MAJORITY IN HARTFORD. NORWICH, Conn., Oct. 7 .- The result of the town elections in Eastern Connecticut is to leave the same parties in possession of the local governments as last year. In this town the vote on assessor last year was : Republican, 1,451; Democratic, 834; Greenback, 104. This year it is -Republican 1,484; Democratic, 572; Greenback, An insignificant Greenback vote was cast outside of this town. Not one town in ten had a separate ticket, and not one-twentieth of the vote

A remarkable feature of these elections is the development of the prohibitory sentiment. Norwich and New-London and nearly all the large villages east of the Connecticut River have voted for "no linense."

HARTEGED, Conn., Oct. 7.—The town election today was very close. At 10:30 p. m. the returns were not all in. The Democrats have elected their ticket, probably by 50 majority.
